GLENDALE HIRES NEW DEPUTY INTERGOVERNMENTAL PROGRAMS DIRECTOR

GLENDALE, Ariz. – The city of Glendale has hired Greg Montes as its new deputy intergovernmental programs director.

The Intergovernmental Programs Department identifies and assists in the implementation of beneficial community partnerships, public policies and organizational efforts. Montes' role within the department will be to assist in the coordination of legislative and intergovernmental activities and programs for the city. He will work closely with various agencies such as Maricopa Association of Governments, Valley Metro and Valley Metro Rail.

Montes comes to Glendale with more than 13 years of experience in government. Most recently, he worked for the city of Phoenix, where he held several positions including public works management assistant, legislative liaison and small business development project manager. He began as a Phoenix management intern working in the City Manager's Office and Intergovernmental Programs. Montes also worked for the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs and interned for the Office of U.S. Congressman Ed Pastor.

Montes holds a Master of Public Affairs from the University of Texas at Austin and a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science from the University of Arizona.
